

TRAINING GIRLS FOR DOMESTIC DUTIES.—Training girls for household duties ought to be considered as necessary as instruction in reading, writing and arithmetic, and quite as universal. We are in our homes more than half of our existence, and it is the household surroundings which reflect more largely the happiness or misery of domestic life. If the wife knows how to "keep house," if she understands how to "set a table," if she has learned how things ought to be cooked, how beds should be made, how carpets should be swept, how furniture should be dusted, how the clothes should be repaired, and renovated; if she knows how purchases can be made to the best advantage, and understands the laying in of provisions, how to make them go farthest and last longest; if she appreciates the importance of system, order, tidiness, and the quiet management of children and servants, then she knows how to make a little heaven of home; how to win her children from the street; how to keep her husband from the club-house, the gaming table, and the wine-cup. Such a family will be trained to social respectability, to business success, and to efficiency and usefulness in whatever position may be allotted to them. It may be said that not one girl in ten in our large towns and cities enters married life who has learned to make a house, to purchase a dress, to dust a painting, to sweep a carpet, or to cut and fit a dress. How much the perfect knowledge of these things bears upon the thrift, the comfort, and health of families may be conjectured, but not calculated by figures. It would be an immeasurable advantage to take a beginning by attaching a kitchen to every girl's school in the nation, and have lessons given daily in the preparation of all the ordinary articles of food and drink for the table, and how to purchase them in the market to the best advantage, with the result of a large saving of money, an increase of comfort, and higher health in every family in the land. To the above, which we clip from an exchange, we are happy to add that in many institutions for the education of girls, provisions have been made to fill the want here referred to, at least to a great extent. In the Parker Institute, in Brooklyn, N. Y., the young ladies are taught the theory and practice of baking, cooking, preserving, making wine, etc., under the instruction of their excellent teachers in chemistry. Professor Eaton. At the yearly examination of this class they give proof of their proficiency in the practical application of chemistry to the art of preparing food, by an elaborate lunch, in which everything is prepared by the young ladies. They have baked the bread, puddings, and pies, made the preserves, the fruit-wines, etc., and we need not say that this practical part of the examination is better enjoyed by the examiners than the theoretical, in which, by the way, these pupils are as proficient as would be a prize for any male college in the land.—E.

THE FORTUNE.—A poor Arab going through the desert, met with a sparkling spring. Accustomed to brackish water, a draught from this sweet well in the wilderness seemed, to his simple mind, a present to offer to the caliph. So he filled his leather bottle, and, after a weary tramp, laid his humble gift at his sovereign's feet. The monarch, with the magnanimity that may put many a Christian to blush, called for a cup, and filling it, drank freely; and with a smile, thanked the Arab, and presented him with a reward. The courtiers pressed eagerly around for a draught of this wonderful water, which was regarded as worthy such a princely acknowledgment. To their surprise the caliph forbade them to touch a drop. Then, after the simple-hearted giver left the royal presence, with a new spring of joy welling up in his heart, the monarch explained the motive for his prohibition. "During his last journey, the water in this leather bottle had become impure and distasteful; but it was an offering of love, and as such, I accepted it with pleasure. I feared, however, that if I allowed another to taste it, he would not conceal his disgust. Therefore, it was for that I forbade you to partake, lest the heart of the poor man should be wounded."

A MR. R.—of Ottawa, in the State of Kansas, has for some years been employed by various railroad companies to secure the right of way, in which capacity he has been quite successful. Recently, a few people were gathered at a station, among whom was a celebrated revivalist of the hard-shell persuasion. Mr. R. was introduced to this person, and extending his hand, said: "I'm happy to see you, Sir."

The hard-shell drew back, looked heavenward, and, pointing up with his finger, exclaimed: "But shall we meet yonder, Sir?"

Mr. R. quietly replied: "I don't know; I'm going there myself, and for a commission, will do what I can to secure the right of way for you."

After 12,000 men will take part on each side in the forthcoming autumn maneuvers in England, which, this year, will take place on Salisbury Plain. The two armies will be drawn up at different places, whence they will march in fighting order to the plain, a series of battles being fought on the way thither. The volunteers and militia are to go out with the regulars.

An example of precautionary justice furnished by the English courts is worthy of imitation elsewhere. A collier, employed at the Silkestone colliery, for having taken a naked lamp into the mine, was sentenced to two months in prison. He endangered the lives of four hundred workmen by his careless neglect. A few such penalties in Pennsylvania would exert a good influence, and perhaps prevent "another mining disaster" paragraph in the telegraph news.

The silk market of France, especially of Lyons, is in an unusually depressed state, and the manufacturers are manifestly discouraged. Lately, there has been an import levied upon home manufacture, and from various causes, the yield of raw silk will be much less than of other years, at an advance of fifteen per cent. Purchasers are few, and bargains in exporting still fewer. Added to these difficulties, the French have to contend with a revival of competition in Germany, Switzerland, and England—within the last few years those countries having doubled their exports of silk.

FLORA SEEDS.—The San Francisco Academy of Sciences, at its session on Monday night, was presented with a lot of "flora seeds," sent from Stockholm. The little jokers look like mustard seeds, but jump about from place to place and are as lively as fleas. The academy was astounded. What next?

As a loser of himself Dr. Livingstone is without a parallel in history. For our part, we can't see the use of spending so much time and money to find a man who can't be hired to stay found, and who is never happy except when he is lost."

At one of the schools in Cornwall, England, the Inspector asked the children if they could quote any text of Scripture which forbade a man having two wives. One of the children sagely quoted in reply the text, "No man can serve two masters."

A CONTINENT COVERED WITH ICE.—Professor Agassiz comes to the conclusion that the Continent of North America was once covered with ice for a mile in thickness, thereby agreeing with Professor Hitchcock and other eminent geological writers concerning the glacial period. In proof of this conclusion, he says that the slopes of the Alleghany range of mountains are glacier-worn to the very top, except a few points which were above the sea-level. Mt. Washington, for instance, is over 6,000 feet high, and the rough, unpolished surface of its summit, covered with loose fragments, just below the level of which glacier-marks come to an end, tells that it lifted its head alone above the desolated waste of ice and snow.

In this region, then, the thickness of the ice can not have been much less than 6,000 feet, and it is in keeping with the same kind of evidence in other parts of the country; for when the mountains are much below 6,000 feet the ice seems to have passed directly over them, while the few peaks rising to that height are left untouched. The glacier, he argues, was God's great plow, and when the ice vanished from the face of the land, it left it prepared for the hand of the husbandman. The hard surface of the rocks was ground to a powder, the elements of the soil were mingled in fair proportions, granite was carried into lake regions, lime was mingled with the more arid and unproductive granite districts, and the soil was prepared fit for the agricultural use of man. There are evidences all over the Polar regions, to show that at one period the heat of the Tropics extended all over the globe. The ice period is supposed to be long subsequent to this, and next to the last before the advent of man.

THEALS OF AN INSURANCE AGENT.—Seated by the corpse of his departed spouse wailed a strong man, as if his heart would break. His disheveled hair was moist with the sweat of agony, and his clenched hands and swollen eyes told how deep and engrossing was his grief. There was also a strong odor of stale gin in the apartment. To him came a man clad in broadcloth and bearing a bundle of tracts, upon the old page of each one of which was printed the advertisement of a life insurance company, who endeavored to console the bereaved and weeping father. Then he proposed the weeping widower in wrath, and rebuked the tract insurance agent. "You talk of sympathy!" he exclaimed; "you, who were nursed in the lap of industry, and weaned on the pap-bottle of business! O man! you can never know how great is my loss! She was a pattern wife. Nine years we dwelt together, during which time I never had a day of stroke of work. Why, you poor wretch! she sometimes made four dollars and a half a day with her washing! Never will I find the woman that can fill her place. And whiskey is so damned expensive, now, too!" The strong man again bowed himself over the remains and sobbed like a child, and the insurance agent turned away with a sigh, nor did he waste a single tract on the distracted widower.

A SOMEWHAT singular episode of real life occurred on the piazza of the United States Hotel at Saratoga, not long since. A somewhat noted woman, formerly a singer of some prominence, while walking with her present husband, chanced to see in her promenade directly between two of her former husbands. The three men, each of whom loved the same woman, and who hated each other mortally, glanced at each other for a moment, the woman in her beauty, her diamonds, and her airy summer dress, eyed all three curiously; there was a momentary pause, then the lady and her escort resumed their walk, the other man stepped forth in diverging directions, and the episode was over.

A FENSIVE young man in Wisconsin, while singing "Come, love, come," beneath his Dulcinea's window one night, had love, music, and everything else knocked out of him by a something in a long white garment that fell out of a chamber window. It proved to be nobody but his girl, who in her anxiety to know who was serenading her, leaned too far over the window sill—hence the result. He says that when she sings "Come, love, come," again, he will keep away from under the window, as his system cannot stand many more such shocks.

"Do you like these cigars?" a nobleman is reported to have inquired one day of a boon companion.

"Indeed, I think they're admirable," was the answer.

"Well," rejoined the first speaker, "I'll tell you what I'll do."

"By Jove!" said the other to himself, "now it's coming."

"I'll give you"—another puff of the said superlative cigars—"the address of the fellow I got them from."

SUSAN ANTHONY should get after the man who makes the following discrimination: "The male mosquito lives a short, idle life, doing little harm, and subsisting upon the sweets gathered from flowers, having a dainty preference for lilies, and subsisting upon the sweets gathered from lilies, and the female is the noisy aggressive sex, and makes life a burden to those unfortunate mortals encountering her. She stings them and 'brags' about it, and, not content with her own evil career, every month deposits one hundred eggs in some cool, damp place, thus multiplying and perpetuating her kind."

The Prussian Minister of Public Education has given a decision that female teachers may, indeed, be employed in German schools, but only in such instances where male instruction is not to be obtained. Male teachers are, however, in every instance to have the preference.

ENGLISH SERVANTS are tempted to steal by the circulation of the hand-bills thrown into the areas, giving the place of business of purchasers of "old silver ware," accompanied by the information, in large type, that all purchases are melted down on the premises.

The Baltimore papers complain of poorgas and street lighting arrangements, and patetically picture the police of the city as losing themselves in the darkness of their own beats and inquiring the way to the station-house of strangers.

A "woman of business" in Arkansas has just tarred and feathered her husband. If a fellow is to be "Ku-Kluxed," how much nicer it must be to have it done by the wife of his bosom than by the cold, rough hand of a hooded stranger.

"The Lady of Lorne," the "Reine Margot," and the "Martha Washington," are the poetical titles of battles.

VESUVIUS LAYS is in such demand for jewelry that another eruption is desired to supply the market.

LONG BRANCH, dot to be outside, has its Spa, where all the mineral waters can be obtained.

At Niagara the "billion and cooing" of bridal parties is heard above the roar of the falls.

MAIDEN LADIES regard the multitude of wedding nowadays as simply outrageous.

SILK WANTS and brick colored hair indicate the belle in French fashion.
